

Dear European HIV Testing Week past and future participants, endorsers and all interested parties,

As previously communicated, this year the scope of the European HIV-Hepatitis Testing Week (20-27 November 2015) has expanded to include hepatitis. Whether or not you, as a participant, would like to include hepatitis in your programme is of course optional.

We have prepared a logo and three different straplines to which we would like to hear your input. Do you love them? Hate them? Do they translate well into your local language? Please click here to view the logos and straplines and let us know your opinion by 26 June 2015.

Although we are still working on updating our website and materials, it is already now possible to sign up! Remember that eventhough you participated in 2013 and/or 2014 you need to sign up again for 2015 which you can do here.

As we are updating our website, we would really like to know how user friendly it is and whether all materials are easily accessible. Any input or good ideas? Or is there something about the website that has been annoying in the past which you think we should improve? Then join our group of volunteer website reviewers to look through the website and suggest improvements so that we can give the 2015 European HIV-Hepatitis Testing Week the best start possible. If interested, then please contact us at hie.rigshospitalet@regionh.dk by 26 June 2015.

Finally, stay tuned for more updates coming shortly about the 2015 European HIV-Hepatitis Testing Week on our website, Facebook, Twitter and in the next newsletter.

With kind regards,
The European HIV-Hepatitis Testing Week Secretariat
